MARKET SUMMARY

INDIA

- The Indian recycling market remained quite buoyant during the week, supported by a substantial improvement in local market conditions.
- As previously reported, the reduced availability of steel scrap, following the crackdown on smaller scrap suppliers over GST-related issues, continues to tighten supply and support domestic steel and scrap prices.
- This has translated into improved recycling sentiment, with buyers maintaining healthy interest and the market showing a firmer undertone.

BANGLADESH

- The Bangladesh recycling market remained moderate over the week, with local conditions showing little change.
- Buying interest remains available, although sentiment continues to lack strong conviction.
- Recyclers are maintaining a measured approach, with no significant upward momentum seen in the market.
- Overall activity remains steady, with local market fundamentals offering limited support to prices.

PAKISTAN

- The Pakistan recycling market remained relatively stable over the week, although prices have eased slightly from the higher levels achieved previously.
- The last couple of vessels have reportedly concluded at softer levels, with fewer buyers showing interest at current pricing.
- Local scrap prices have also moved lower, creating some concern among recyclers and weighing on overall sentiment.
- Buyers are therefore approaching new opportunities with greater caution, and the market is presently showing a slightly softer tone.

TURKIYE

- The Turkish recycling market remained steady over the week, with no significant change in overall pricing or sentiment.
- Vessel supply continues to be influenced mainly by regulatory requirements and vessel positioning, rather than by direct competition with the Subcontinent.
- Most yards remain well occupied for the coming months, keeping buyers selective and limiting aggressive bidding to better-quality tonnage.
- Import scrap prices improved by around USD 5, while local scrap prices remained broadly unchanged.
- The continued weakness of the Turkish lira remains a pressure point, but overall market conditions continue to hold relatively stable.
