RECYCLING

High Expectations!

With the Diwali festivities set for next week, the lack of tonnage is not helping the Indian recyclers to come forward with explosive offers and therefore, unfortunately, we look to enter next week on a very low-key sentiment.

There is a lot of demand for steel in the Indian sub. Continent with many infrastructure projects in the pipeline and with steel at present not freely accessible, price levels should remain firm for the time being. The dry freight rates have shown some weaker signs, however certainly not sufficient to see some of these units enter the recycling market, therefore we will only continue to see tonnage proposed from the tanker, miscellaneous and offshore sectors for the time being.
