RECYCLING

Ifs and Buts!

Whilst levels in Bangladesh and Pakistan remain firm, but steady to an extent, prices from India have increased significantly this week, as evidenced by the sale reported below of a capesize bulk carrier.

Steel producers in India and local Sellers of the inventories are anticipating increased exports to Europe and higher steel production costs due to the possibility of tighter steel and coal supplies because of the conflict in the Ukraine.

Russia and Ukraine are among the top global exporters of steel with the majority being exported to European countries. Now, reports suggest that Indian Sellers are witnessing increased inquiry from European buyers on the back of an almost suspension of the Ukraine steel industry and sanctions affecting trade from Russia. India's steel exports to Europe are limited by the European Union's steel safeguard quotas, but some industry insiders believe the EU may relax these at some point. With this in mind, price levels from India have increased and look set to remain impressive for the foreseeable future.

There are so many global uncertainties at this precise time due to the conflict and we are seeing several Owners withdrawing their tonnage from the recycling market to see how sentiment reacts. The concern from the recyclers is the shortage of tonnage will continue further in addition to their emptying yards, therefore optimism for the current firm rates looks set to continue. Everything however hinges on whether a swift resolution to the conflict can be found.
