RECYCLING

Mini Correction!

This week saw price levels tumble southwards on the back of falls in global steel/commodity markets against the speculation that a peace agreement is near fruition between Russia and Ukraine which would allow a resumption of increased steel exports. In particular, the domestic steel markets in Bangladesh and India witnessed a sharp correction at the beginning of the week with reports India fell by some USD 60-70/ldt and Bangladesh by some USD 30-40/ldt for ship recycling.

Having seen a continued rise in rates over several weeks, the recycling market has certainly mirrored global steel markets with these significant drops, however the latter part of the week did find finally see a sense of stability return and talk of levels rebounding. However, even if a peace agreement was reached, and let us pray that it will be soon, it is likely to be months before any lifting of sanctions will be discussed and steel exports allowed to resume.
