Recycling

Lethargic!

The sluggish market continues with little activity or hope for some change in the pattern for the remainder of the year.

Surprisingly, there was no 'post' Diwali boom and in fact, the Indian market opened with a concerning plummet in the domestic steel markets instead of the anticipated jump. Sentiments remained low this week despite the lack of tonnage as there is reportedly little demand locally for the finished steel. Price of all grades of steel have dropped daily this week although some stability seems to have returned towards the approaching weekend which hopefully will bring a halt to the negative findings.

With the elections set to take place in January, Bangladesh looks set to be the 'bystanders' as recyclers look to have little interest to acquire tonnage whilst the uncertainty of their forthcoming election remains, and the economic position is clearer thereafter. There are reports that the banks have informed their clients that they will not open any Letters of Credit until the New Year.
