MARKET SUMMARY

INDIA

- Indian recyclers continue to face challenges in securing fresh tonnage, as higher price levels offered by Bangladesh are drawing vessels away from the market.
- Domestic steel prices remain under pressure, limiting buyers' ability to match competing regional offers.
- The USD has strengthened compared to last week, though volatility persists, reflecting broader market uncertainty. Overall sentiment remains cautious, with buyers constrained by unsustainable pricing levels.
- Should geopolitical conditions stabilize, further USD strengthening and softer local prices across destinations may follow.

BANGLADESH

- The local market has softened marginally, with prices declining by approximately BDT 200 (in USD terms).
- Buyer appetite remains firm, with continued interest in acquiring vessel candidates.
- Supply of recyclable tonnage remains constrained due to ongoing geopolitical uncertainty.
- Limited vessel availability is expected to keep the market stable to firm, with near-term direction dependent on geopolitical developments.

PAKISTAN

- Market sentiment remains uncertain, with no recent transactions available to establish a clear direction.
- Buyers continue to show interest in acquiring tonnage; however, they remain unable to compete with the stronger price levels available in Chittagong, while limited vessel supply continues to constrain activity.
- Local scrap demand is offering some support, particularly as imports from the Middle East remain disrupted by the ongoing conflict.

TURKIYE

- The Turkish market remained broadly stable this week, with no meaningful changes in pricing or overall sentiment.
- Additionally, most yards are currently operating at full capacity, with very limited appetite for new purchases.
- While fundamentals have not deteriorated, there is a clear lack of buying urgency, largely due to already full yard inventories and limited capacity to absorb additional tonnage. Buyers are therefore maintaining a wait-and-see approach, showing discipline on pricing and only considering units that fit very specific requirements.
